Best Practices

Messaging

Frame your messaging thoughtfully.

Keep it simple, limit the choices and the call to action (CTA).

Subject: Building a culture of engagement and accountability

Hi Miranda,

It seems like creating a culture of positive engagement and accountability is important to you.

At Ultimate, it's important to us too - and we find that leading companies are using internal and external benchmarking to reinforce performance.

Would you be open to discussing how you're approaching this, and what we've seen as best practices among our clients?

Best,

[Your name]

What Makes an Effective Cold Call?

Research

Before picking up the phone, do research (internal database and external sources) to make sure you understand who you will be speaking with.

Goal Identification

Understand the goal of the cold call -- to engage, generate interest and qualify the person/organization.

Be Prepared

Be prepared to concisely explain why you are calling. Preempt FAQs and common objections.

skaled.com

Best Practices

Cold Calling

Be persistent - cold call effectiveness doesn't start until the 4th to 5th touchpoint and it peaks at the 9th touchpoint.

Gatekeepers are valuable sources of information.

- You can find out about the contact's schedule and organizational structure.
- They can point you to more relevant contact.
- Make them feel valued!

40

What is the Impact?

Tone & pitch

What does the tone of your voice convey? Does it reflect confidence? Friendliness? Boredom? Immaturity?

Are you speaking too fast? Too slow?

Vary your pitch and inflection to create more energy

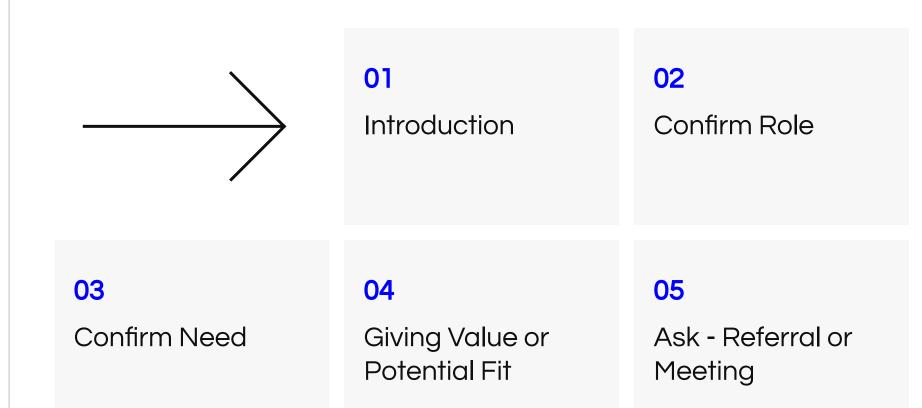

Many studies have shown that we perceive people with lower-pitched voices to be more competent and trustworthy

Best practice

Listen to you own calls so you can adjust on all factors listed here.

Sample Call

Giving value + asking for the meeting

"Yes, we know this is an issue for many leaders in Customer Success and it sounds like you might be seeing this at [Company name] as well.

Why don't we set up a 10 minute call to chat in more detail? That way, I can share how other [job titles] are partnering with [Company] to build their [potential you bring]. Hold on one second...let me pull up my calendar...How does DATE and TIME look on your end?

Sounds good, looking forward to our call."

Emails

skaled.com

The essential part of a successful outbound sales effort. Messaging should be personalized when time permits, consistently relevant, and have a call to action in each note.

Messaging cadences (rate and form of outreach) should be tailored to the industry and buyer persona.

Subject line

Emails

On average, email open rates are between 20% and 30%

Having a subject line means relaying your key message even if the reader doesn't open the email

Use descriptive subject lines or clear call to action

Opening

The preheader appears next to the subject line in most email clients, generated from the first line of text in your email

Frame the messaging around the prospect's position

Include messaging that is relevant to the prospect

Add personalization where possible

Body

Keep this short and simple

What is the value proposition for the prospect?

What is a quick value add piece of information you can share?

Call to action

End the email with a call to action

Ask to schedule a quick 8 minute conversation on a specific date and time

Emails

Option A

Discuss why you are reaching out to them in particular because....

- They are a specific title in a type of company that should care because (Industry/functional trend).
- They showed some interest.
- You were referred by one of their peers.

Opening: establish credibility

Option B

Demonstrate industry expertise, or the results of your work with their competitors. In working with [insert industry], they mentioned [relevant point]:

- When researching (industry/topic), we found (relevant statistic) and thought it would be interesting to share.
- Relevant articles.

Option A

Emails

Discuss their pain points and challenges. Ex: As the (title), I'm sure you are well aware of (relevant pain points).

2nd paragraph: outline the pain

Option B

Discuss threatening industry trends. Ex: We've seen a lot of (relevant titles) struggle to (achieve / overcome XYZ) given (industry trend), so there is a growing need for (challenges Ultimate solves for).

Best Practices

- Understand who you are reaching out to
- Target more than one person in the company
- Create credibility reference relevant industry clients
- Add value highlight their specific pain and give a solution
- Only share relevant content to who you're emailing
- Show proof that you've done research and understand their role and organization

It really matters

Increase response rate 2-3x in 5min

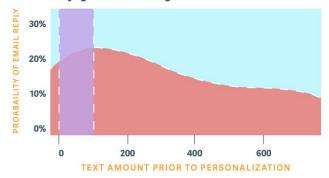

Personalizing the first 20% of your email results in 2x response rates, but ROI decreases if you spend more than 5 minutes personalizing

Always include personalization early on and leave the remaining 80% templated

Sales email probability of replies proportion of personalization

Reply Probability

Personalization and Customization Tips

X factors they care about that are relevant to your product

Example: I noticed that your company had a few reviews on Glassdoor mentioning a desire for more social outings for the team. Use statistics that are relevant to them

Example: Inc.com recently published a study around the importance of getting teams out of the office together... Relevant information on their LinkedIn or company news

Example:

I saw on LinkedIn that we're from the same 5,000-person hometown - love it. Did you go to the Diner on Rt. 9 as much I did in High School?

Sentiments

Using the word "congrats" in-reference to a personal achievement increases reply rates 2x and appointments by an avg. of 4x

Use LinkedIn steps to expedite this research step

Bias towards informal

Use 1 to 4 word subject lines

Do:

- Keep it mobile-friendly
- Emails with under 100 words are more effective Writing with an elementary vernacular is 95% more effective
- Be clear + direct

Don't:

- Use bullets
- Include multiple links
- Use more than 2 images
- Include a p.s.

Sign-Offs:

- "Best" is the most effective
- While "thank you" is least effective

Let's recap

Frame your messaging thoughtfully - start by empathizing with the persona.

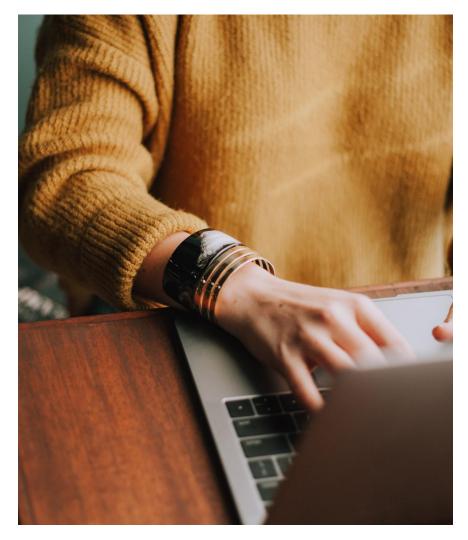

Keep it simple, limit the choices and call to action (CTA).

Sell to the individual, then the employee, then the company.

Workshop: 30 minutes

Draft an email & group discussion

- Break into groups of 3.
- Empathize with that persona and consider their 'language'.
- Draft the subject and body of the first two email touches in the sequence.
- Discuss among your group.

Thank you!
